NO MORE GAS WAR.

As compared to the gas war which has been going on since the United States entered the world war, the gas war which is now being waged by the United States and Japan is a mere child's play. It is a war of nerves and nerves are not made of steel. The gas war which is now being waged by the United States and Japan is a war of nerves and nerves are not made of steel.

OLD FRIEND RE-APPEARS.

It is apparent that the tariff will be one of the main issues of the congressional campaign of 1922. The New York Times, one of the leaders of the Democratic press, says editorially in a recent issue:

"The Democrats ought to resist the making of a new tariff by all the means in their power. There is no real general demand for a tariff. It is no time for tariff making. The Republicans really pledged themselves in 1920 not to make one."

From the standpoint of partisan interest the Republicans could wish nothing more to their advantage than for the Democrats to resist the making of a new tariff "by all the means in their power." It is our guess, however, that many Democrats will be found favoring protective duties on various commodities, although when a final vote is taken on a bill framed in accordance with Republican principles the greater part of the Democratic vote will be against it. Individual Democratic congressmen will go on record as favoring protection on the industries in which their constituents are interested, but when it comes to voting for protection on the industries of the United States as a whole a large majority of the Democrats will vote in the negative.

Since the New York Times says that the Republicans pledged themselves in 1920 not to make a tariff law, it is worth while to examine the platform and see exactly what the Republicans pledged themselves to do. The tariff plank says:

"The increased and unsettled condition of international balances, the abnormal economic and trade situation of the world, and the impossibility of forecasting accurately even the near future, preclude the formation of a definite program in these conditions a year hence. But the Republican party reaffirms its belief in the protective principle and pledges itself to a revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary for the preservation of the home market for American labor, agriculture and industry."

The Times says the Republicans pledged themselves not to make a tariff. The platform expressly has pledged the party to make a revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary. In every department store and toy shop in the United States last December a large proportion of the toys offered for the Christmas trade bore the imprint of Germany. German cutlery, optical goods, crockery, surgical instruments and numerous other commodities are now coming into the United States at prices with which the American manufacturer cannot possibly compete. Conditions have made it necessary for the imposition of protective duties for the preservation of the home market for American labor and industry.

It is true that the farmers are not asking for a revision of the tariff today, but they were asking it a year ago and the first undertaking of the special session of congress was the enactment of an emergency agricultural tariff law. Farmers who have already received the protection they demanded will endorse the desire of American manufacturers that they be given the same measure of protection that was accorded to agricultural interests. There is general demand for protection on all commodities not already protected under legislation passed by the Republican congress.

SHIP DESTRUCTION.

Under the provisions of the five-power treaty for limitation of naval armament the United States must scrap the following first line battle ships: Maine, Missouri, Virginia, Nebraska, Georgia, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Louisiana, Vermont, Kansas, Minnesota, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Michigan, all of which are in service, and must stop work and abandon the building program on the following: Washington, South Dakota, Indiana, Montana, North Carolina, Iowa, Massachusetts, Lexington, Constitution, Constellation, Saratoga, Ranger and United States.

The following first line ships may be retained by the United States: Maryland, California, Tennessee, Idaho, New Mexico, Mississippi, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Nevada, New York, Texas, Arkansas, Wyoming, Florida, Utah, North Dakota and Delaware. The United States may complete and retain two ships of the West Virginia class, which are the latest and most powerful of battleships under construction, but upon the completion of these two ships the North Dakota and Delaware, mentioned above, must be scrapped.

Upon the completion of this program the first line battleships of the United States will be 525,850 tons.

PAYDAY IN MINES BRINGS GOOD CHEER

Business was quite lively in Tonopah today as a result of the distribution of more than $150,000 among the mine and mill workers of the district. It was the semi-monthly payday and the circulation of money began quite early and is still continuing. Merchants are being kept on the jump, and there is a general good feeling prevailing in all quarters. In view of the fact that spring is now near at hand it is anticipated that conditions will commence to show an improvement as a result of the resumption of work on a great many properties in outlying sections.

ROMAN HOLIDAY SINGING FIESTA ENTERTAINING

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 25. — The world "Hungarian Dance" of Brahms, the graceful "Melody in F" by Rubenstein, the lazy "Berceuse" of Joplin, the sonorous "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" by Rachmaninoff and a score more deathless creations of the world's music masters are having a Roman holiday in 250 middle western cities and communities in what are known as "Music Memory Contests."

They sing themselves into the brains of thousands of school children and men and women in every nook and cranny of life. They inebriate themselves into merriment and revelry.

Their origin is clouded but their popularity is undoubted. They sprang into vogue a year ago but this winter saw the fullest response to their appeal. In the more populous centers they are attracting attention and winning supporters, but it is in the smallest centers and rural communities that they bear their best fruit.

A better comprehension of good music is the motive of the contest, which are generally backed by musical and literary clubs in close cooperation with the schools. A selected list of classical musical numbers, generally 30 to 40 in number, is prepared. In the main an effort is made to have the list fully representative of every branch of music, the modern American composition having its conspicuous place among the more tried and tested creations of Bach and Beethoven.

The contest runs through two months, while a vigorous campaign is conducted in churches, theatres and schools to familiarize contestants with the several selections. Not only are the compositions emphasized but the lives of the composers and a general survey of their entire musical career are studied.

The contestants, with pen and paper, listen to a program of selections from the list played and sung, writing down the names of the selections as they are rendered, giving the composer's name and a short sketch of his life and works. When numbers are sung at these examinations the singer omits the words which would give a clue to the name, generally humming the melody. Competition is encouraged by the offering of prizes which generally are cricket balls allied with music.

Northern Illinois has just seen launched one of the largest of these contests, backed by schools throughout the entire section included. Another large contest in which over 32,000 are registered is being conducted in the thumb of Michigan by Port Huron music organizations with the cooperation of music lovers in the several communities of the five counties involved.

BASKETEERS DEPART TOUR OF CONQUEST

Fully 200 school students and pupils were at the depot this morning to wish the basketball players, both boys' and girls' teams, take their departure for the north, where they will participate in the state tournament which will be held in Reno next week. The Tonopah teams are considered among the very best in this state and many believe they will return with full honors.

SALES TAX IS NOT APPROVED SUBCOMMITTEE

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. The proposition was said to have been supported by only three members. It was understood the proposal will be brought up again today at a meeting of all majority members of the ways and means committee.
